

Home Safety Council and EMBARQ Help You Make Disaster Preparedness a Priority!

As valued members of the Home Safety Council's Expert Network, we know that disaster preparedness is top of mind for you! Yet despite the recent emphasis on the need for families to prepare for emergencies, a recent survey sponsored by Embarq Corporation and conducted with the Home Safety Council revealed that many households still lack key components of good emergency planning, especially in severe weather. The survey of mothers and their third-or fourth-grade children in EMBARQ™ service areas found that nearly 40 percent of mothers said their family does not have an emergency communication plan, and nearly half do not carry an ID card with essential contact information. Communication is key to staying safe during severe weather threats. To help you and your families be prepared and have access to crucial information available at all times, EMBARQ and HSC have created wallet-sized emergency communication cards specifically for you!

What: Each free wallet-sized emergency communication card comes in a small, sealable plastic bag to help protect it from water damage.

Where: EMBARQ retail stores in Florida, Texas, North Carolina and South Carolina will have free emergency communication cards available on site. If there's not an EMBARQ store in your local area, the cards are also available for download online at www.embarq.com/severeweather.

Click Here for more information about how HSC and EMBARQ are helping families make emergency preparedness a top priority during severe weather.

Sincerely,
The Home Safety Council